Church, chapel and village news

In the name of the Father and of the son and of the Holy Ghost we dedicate this cross to the glory of God and in the memory of the men whose name it bears and who have fallen in the service of their country. May their example inspire us with courage in the greater war against all evil. May their memory ever burn brightly in our hearts.

Number 87 Autumn 2014

COVER: Below the war memorial cross are the words of the prayer that was used by the Archdeacon of Montgomery at the dedication of the cross in January 1924.

Dear Parishioners,

When William Morgan was appointed vicar of Llanrhaeadr ym Mochnant in 1578, he was responsible for training the local militia. That is not as surprising as it might seem. Queen Elizabeth I was designated Supreme Governor of the Church, so the clergy became her dogsbodies, a local workforce to do her bidding. This was the period of the Armada. So the vicar drilled the Elizabethan dad's army.

William Morgan may be one of the most illustrious of Welshmen, but clearly he was not good at the musket, fife and drum. That is where Llansilin comes in. Soon after his appointment a posse led by Ieuan Meredydd of Lloran Uchaf, Llansilin, invaded Llanrhaeadr, beat up the militia and laid siege to the vicarage. (I'd love to have been there. I know the house well.) Why did he do that? There was a feud between him and the vicar, made a great deal worse by the machinations of William Morgan's meddlesome mother in law. Such was the way of the world.

But it brings me to the point. Even today the parochial clergy are required to do a great many things for which they are not particularly suited. Nobody has ever expected me to become the local Captain Mainwaring. But in my time I have made up the parish accounts, organised knobbly knees competitions and fished fully dressed choirboys out of swimming pools.

I breathed a sigh of relief when I retired from my incumbency. I would never, I thought, have to haul a trestle table ever again, (that, I suspect, will come back to bite me) which brings me to my present position. At Llansilin I am no longer burdened with the practical responsibilities of an incumbent. All I am expected to do is the job for which I was ordained. So? Am I any good at it? It remains to be seen. I can but try.

On 10 May 2015, for instance, Bishop Gregory will be conducting a service of Confirmation in one of the parishes. (We don't yet know where.) There have been no confirmation classes here for a number of years. So I am inviting those who have not been confirmed, both young and old, to attend a class. Let's make it clear. Nobody comes in order to be confirmed. People come to find out whether they want to be confirmed.

It's important. We live in a strongly secular society. People might think religion no longer matters. Yet in many parts of our world we are confronted with violent religious extremism . . . religion gone wrong. As the destruction of New York's twin towers goes to prove, it threatens our very existence. So that is the point of confirmation classes. I'm not a dodgy holy salesman. People must make up their own minds. They may not believe. But they should know what it's about.

May God bless you,

Richard

There will be a special commemoration of the First World War in St Silin's on Bank Holiday Sunday. It will bring together the churches of Llansilin, Rhiwlas, Llangadwaladr and the chapels in a poignant tribute of readings, hymns and prayers to those from Llansilin who fought and died for us.

Sunday 24 August 10.30 St Silin's Church.

Keeping an eye on the county

The Community Council keeps a keen interest in the services from Powys County Council and receives regular clarifications of their current system for addressing issues. In particular, following a number of queries raised at the June meeting, members were presented with the ranking scheme for undertaking minor works such as highways inspections (potholes and the like) and the grounds maintenance service (grass cutting, weed control and shrub maintenance). All very relevant when we consider the crumbling quality of our local roads and the financial cuts that the council is experiencing. It was noted and members have shown concern for the subsiding levels of the road by Bryn Coch corner and do advise people to take care as the ground is uneven.

From 2015 all community and town councils will have a legal duty to establish websites and provide records of their proceedings on the internet. This is an ideal opportunity for us to share updates and communications with our residents.

Members were happy to support a retrospective planning application for change of land use accommodating a motorbike track and associated works at Llechrydau farm near Selatyn. This was thought to be a good use of land and will provide a facility that helps diverts the motorbikes off other green spaces.

The clerk had received the Community Council audit for the year ending 31 March 2014 and members were asked to approve the annual return so that the final audit certification can be obtained.

Dog fouling along our roads and paths seems to be on the increase and the council has received complaints. This is unacceptable and those walking their dogs need to be responsible and clear up after their pets. It is disgusting and lets down our village and the well behaved dog owners. This sort of nuisance is illegal and carries a fixed penalty. Please be more mindful.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday 9 September 7.30pm in The Institute and the clerk can be contacted on 791692.

SCHOOL NEWS

From Llangollen to Louisiana

Once again it has been a busy time in school, the older children travelled to Llanfair Caereinion to an inter-school "Commonwealth Games" and had a very enjoyable time. We also entered a number of teams in the Pennant football tournament.

We welcomed two pupils from The Marches School for a week of work experience and they enjoyed a very varied week, the next week we had former pupil Lisa Jones joining us for her work experience from Llanfyllin High School.

PC Rowlands visited school to talk to our older children about the danger of drugs and also how to stay safe online. Darren Mayor has visited school with his Impact School bus, the children always enjoy his assemblies and look forward to seeing who he will be dressed up as - this time it was Saul from the Bible.

We all enjoyed a whole school trip to Alton Towers in July 4, and staff were very impressed with the pupils behaviour - and bravery!

We treated our Year 6 leavers to a trip to the International Eisteddfod in Llangollen and a visit to the Motorcycle and Classic Car Museum which is owned by Arthur's grandparents- all pupils were very spoilt by having a trip in a vintage car into the middle of Llangollen and also a free ice cream! This was followed by tea in McDonalds.

A very emotional Leavers Service was held in the hall at the end of term, followed by strawberries from the school garden and ice-cream.

Our PTFA organised a sponsored walk in July and will be holding a fund-raising evening at Ty Newydd on Thursday 21 August when a Cajun Band who are on tour all the way from Louisiana will be playing as well as Llansilin's local band "Flatville Aces"

Tickets are priced at £12 per adult and £5 per child and a hog-roast is included in the ticket price-please come along and support us. The raffle will be in aid of the Meifod Eisteddfod Committee. Tickets are available from Jock/Vera (791500) or Jayne Robert-Morris (791332)

Llansilin pulls together to save playgroup

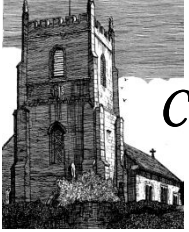

We have a fantastic community here in Llansilin and the Cylch Meithrin Committee would like to send you all a very big thank you.

The cake sale at the Fun Day raised £140.00 and we have been very fortunate to receive much needed donations from community groups and a large donation from a very generous Llansilin resident who has secured the play group for the children for the next 12 months. We have been overwhelmed by the generosity and thank you all.

Cylch will need to continue fund-raising to secure the group for the following year and we hope you will all continue with the wonderful support you have already shown.

BUT we are still in difficulty staffing the playgroup. A small group of parents took on the assistant role helping play leader Linda to save wages but we need help again. Can you volunteer two hours on a Monday 9am - 11am on a rota basis once or twice a month, term time only?

You will need to have a DBS/CRB check which we will organise. If you can help please contact secretary Sara Jones on 01691 791687

Church news

The heart of the village

St Silin's is firmly establishing itself as the cultural heart of the village as it spearheads the commemoration of the First World War and promotes a string of other events throughout the autumn.

Llansilin Remembers is an exhibition in the church that vividly portrays life in the village and tells the story of local people from 1914 to 1919. A group organised by Mary Morris has created displays that include the unveiling of the memorial in the churchyard and the opening of Memorial Hall together with the stories of local men who were killed in action including John Hughes of Bronwylfa , Major John Morris of Lloran Uchaf, John Ellis of Tynyfron, John Ed Evans of Cefnybraich, and Richard and Robert Rogers of Pentrecwn. It is open every day from 22 to 27 August from 10.00am to 7.00pm.

On Bank Holiday Friday – 22nd – the Great War will be remembered in a variety concert of local talent in the church at 7.30pm but the principal commemoration will take place on the Sunday -24th – with a service that has been specially prepared by the vicar, Rev Richard Hughes. This will involve both church and chapel and bring in the congregations of Rhiwlas and Langadwaladr as well. And in the evening there will be a Gamanfa Ganu.

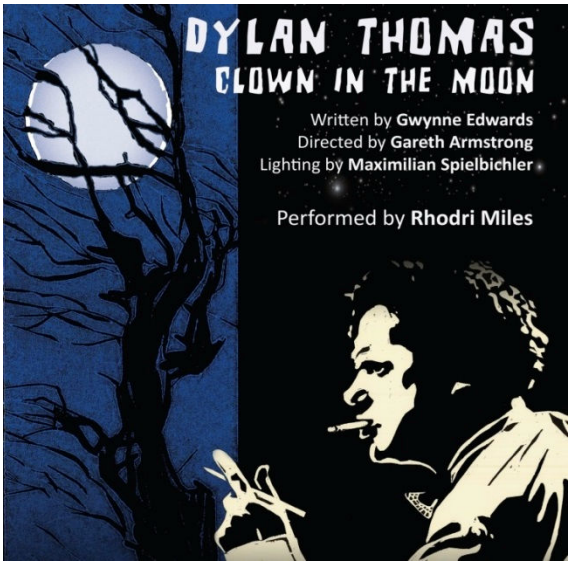

Looking ahead, we are planning special services for St Silin's day in October and hope to include a choir in the Advent Sunday service. Special services at St Silin's are always well attended and this has brought a small but not unwelcome problem. While we are delighted to see so many people in church it is embarrassing when we have to ask you to share a hymn book. We just don't have enough to go round.

If you look at the prayer books you'll see that many have been donated in memory of a particular person. It's a lovely way to keep memories alive and if you are involved with a wedding, baptism or funeral why not think of leaving a perpetual memento in the church by donating a hymn book which can contain a suitable inscription? Mention it to the vicar or a churchwarden and it will not only preserve a personal memory but be much appreciated by others.

If you haven't visited the church for a while do call in during the Bank Holiday when from 22nd to 27th August there is an Open Church As well as the Great War exhibition there will be a variety of stall, raffles and light refreshments every day. It's your church, so make the most of it

Dylan Thomas comes to Llansilin

In a memorable one-man show Rhodri Miles returns to Llansilin with a brilliant tribute to the great Welsh poet Dylan Thomas in the year that marks the centenary of his birth.

According to Wales Arts Review: "Rhodri Miles' performance as the poet was exactly how one imagines Thomas might have been, revealing the flawed, warts-and-all reality that lurked beneath the genius on the page. At times the audience could have closed their eyes and very seriously believed that Dylan Thomas was in the room with them."

The title Clown in the Moon comes from one of Thomas' poems which begins*: My tears are like the quiet drift, Of petals from some magic rose.*

Clown in the Moon is in the Memorial Hall on 13 September at 7.30pm.

Fundraising open garden vent

A successful open garden event held in June raised just over £200. The committee of the Llansilin Community Shop would like to thank all those who opened their gardens for what proved to be a most enjoyable and sociable event.

Visitors were warmly welcomed at each of the eight gardens, where they were able to admire the owners' efforts and swop gardening tips. Thanks also to Joan Fox Linton who co-ordinated the event and Diana Hutchison who hosted the refreshments at Afon Fechan, ably assisted by Lynn Constantine. We are very grateful to all who supported the event in any way.

Celebrating five years

Llansilin Community Shop has been in action for five years, having been set up as a "not for profit" organisation to provide a service to the community by offering a wide range of goods at competitive prices. Many of those involved with not only the initial setting up, but also the ongoing running of the shop, gathered at Capel Soar to mark the event in June. Andrew Hollway chairman of the Llansilin Community Shop Committee thanked all who, having initially identified the need to have a village shop in Llansilin, worked hard to achieve this.

Thanks were also expressed to all who have contributed to its success, including our volunteers, who give of their time to staff the shop, our suppliers, all those that support shop through fund raising events, but most of all to our customers who have supported the shop over the years. A fifth anniversary cake was cut and glasses raised to toast the continued success of the shop.

Village children give their pocket money to help others

Many thanks to all who helped promote Christian Aid activity this year. Our usual activities took but there was a novel approach to involving Ysgol Bro Cynllaith.

The pupils were asked to think of children in great need elsewhere and it was suggested that when they had a treat - an ice cream or sweets perhaps - they might put some of their pocket money aside to help Christian Aid help other children.

The pupils responded well, and the face value of the coins collected. shows that they gave from their own pocket money. Well done Ysgol Bro Cynlaith. Thank you very much indeed for contributing towards an overall total of £681.50, which has been sent off to Christian Aid.

Many adults went a step further, and this year was our best ever for Gift Aiding which allows us to recover tax on your donation so please bear it in mind for next year.
Once again thanks to everyone.

As I'm writing this the National Eisteddfod at Llanelli is drawing to a close. I wonder how many from this area made the journey down there? It was a friendly and colourful event. Let's hope we have the same warm weather at Meifod next year.

Mid July we had a service led by the men. The theme was 'Hands'. Iola Evans had organised this up-lifting service and a big thank you for doing so.

News is rather scares this time but the members of Rhiwlas Sunday School are looking forward to their trip to Llandudno next week. Let's hope we have a fine day.

All over Llansilin the lights were going out…

On 4 August at 10 o'clock the lights went out all over the village as we remembered the day in 1914 when Britain entered the Great War. From the Gyrn only the street lights showed that there was village there at all. And in the surrounding valley, where usually a few lights of farms and homesteads twinkle, all was darkness.

Earlier, at midday, the church bells rang out; but not their usual joyful peal. The bells had been muffled and their soft sonority set the tone for the day when we remembered the end of what seemed an age of innocence and the slaughter of millions. On the church flagstaff the Union Jack and the Welsh flag flew at half-mast.

More than 300 men from Llansilin served in the war; 32 never returned. The village has not forgotten them.

Any tractor of any vintage is welcome to take part.

The event takes place on Sunday 7 September. The Wynnstay Inn is providing breakfast and the tractors will set off from there at 11.30am. The entry fee is £15 and you can get a form from Hayley at Halls Estate Agents in Oswestry of from Wayne at the Wynnstay.

There is another tractor run on the following weekend – 12-13 September from the Wynnstay Inn to Devil's Bridge and back. This will be raising funds for the Samaritans and you can get full details from Wayne at the Wynnstay.

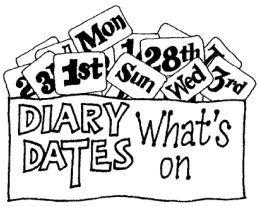

Jean and Doll are repeating last year's Apple Day celebration at the Wynnstay with a selection of real farmhouse ciders and traditional games on Saturday 18 October.
